great disaster. The question, after considerable discussion, was laid over till next meeting, and we expect the members, after fully considering the matter, will see the advantage of joining with our neighboring towns in erecting this, the great wheat district of Alberta.

Several from Granum and Staveland have already been spoken to on the matter and heartily approve of the idea.

The recent fire which occurred at Cleveland, Ohio, and caused the death of about one hundred and eighty school children, is surely enough to make the staff and trustee board of any school of more than one story consider what would occur should their school catch fire.

What about our own school? Ours is much better than the Cleveland school in having wider halls, stairways and doors, but as yet no fire drill has been practised and the children have not been instructed in what they should do in case a fire should occur.

The Review thinks that a good system of fire drill should be at once instituted and well practiced in our school and we believe the teachers would be quite willing to undertake this work. With its two hundred or more pupils enrolled as at present there is nothing surer than, in case of fire, that a serious stampede would occur, but our building is so constructed that with proper fire drill it could be emptied in a very short time without danger of anyone being injured.

Since writing the above we have been informed that fire drill has already been instituted in the school and that yesterday the building was cleared in 15 seconds. This is remarkably short time, especially when we consider that the children have only had a few days drill.
